Delaware Department of Labor
Division of Vocational Rehabilitation

School to Career Transition Services

Vocational Rehabilitation

Who is the Delaware Division of Vocational Rehabilitation (DVR)?

DVR helps individuals with disabilities by providing services to prepare for, obtain, and maintain jobs.

What are Transition Services?

Transition services help students with disabilities move from school to post-high school employment, education, specialized training, and independence. The services provided vary depending upon individual needs.

When is the ideal time to apply for services?

During your junior year you will become familiar with DVR, their services, and you will complete the forms in the referral packet. In your last year of high school the DVR Transition Staff will work with you to plan your goals for the future.

Why work with DVR?

Good planning is the key to success. Your counselor will work with you, your parents, and school staff to help you make informed choices about the kinds of jobs and careers you want to consider.

Where will I meet with the members of my Transition Team?

You will meet with members of your Transition Team primarily at school.

Services

The services received are arranged for and provided based on individual needs, so the length of time it takes to prepare for employment is different for each person.

Vocational Rehabilitation provides services necessary for eligible students. Services may include but are not limited to:

- Counseling and Guidance
- On-the-Job Training
- Supported Employment
- Job Coaching
- Assistive Technology
- Work Readiness Training
- College and University Instruction
- Vocational and Technical Training
- Physical and Mental Restoration
- Referral to other agencies as needed

Cost

Most services are provided at no cost to the student or family. Payment for some services may be based on student and family income.

Order of Selection

Depending on the date of your application and the priority level currently being served, your name may be placed on a waiting list for services.
